DEATH OF EUGENE ASHTON.

The Brilliant Young Elocutionist and Writer Dies Very Suddenly in Philadelphia.

The news was received here Saturday night of the sudden death of Eugene Ashton at Philadelphia. The information is that he was taken violently ill while walking along a street in that city Saturday morning. He was removed at once to the hospital where he shortly afterward breathed his last.

The deceased was well known in this city. He was a son of H. C. Ashton, the present postmaster of Flemingsburg. He was a native of Fleming and was twenty-five years. A few years ago he went to Cincinnati. The Daily Enquirer says: "He was a stanger, but his really remarkable talents as an elocutionist soon gained him a sesame to the best and most exclusive society circles in the city, while his gentlemanly deportment and winning ways made him a popular favorite with all with whom he came in contact. While here he taught elocution, for a time. He also, while here, wrote a play entitled 'Marguerite,' which was produced by amateur talent at the Odeon. It was only moderately successful. Last winter the young elocutionist went to Washington City, where, through his own talents and the very kindly interest taken in him by Mrs. Speaker John G. Carlisle, he soon became an established favorite in the highest society circles of the National Capital. He appeared with great success at several of the entertainments given by Mrs. Whitney, the wife of the Secretary of the Navy. He also participated in entertainments at the White House, and gave readings before Mrs. President Cleveland. The last information received from him here was a few weeks since, when a confidential friend received a letter from him containing the information that he had concluded to go upon the stage, and would, ere long, appear before the footlights, supporting Madame Modjeska."

The deceased had also gained favorable notice as a writer, especially of poetry. His remains will be brought to Flemingsburg to-day, where the burial will take place to-morrow.

The Fleming True Blue Democrat says: "Messrs. John Martin and Joe Hart representing Louis Zech & Co., Red Corner Clothing House, Maysville, were among the many visitors here on court day and did an immense business. Their sample room was thronged with buyers throughout the day and every one was delighted with the elegant and artistic line of clothing they had to select from. Mr. Martin informs us that their business has doubled in the last year, and that he is fully convinced that people appreciate the superiority of their goods over all others."

COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY SALLER left this morning for Morehead to attend a special term of the Rowan Circuit Court, called to try the indictment against James Harris, alias James Pendulum. Harris is charged with conspiring to kill Judge Cole. There were two or three other parties charged with the conspiracy, among them Dr. Logan. Harris confessed on his arrest that he had been hired by Logan to do the killing. Governor Knott, however, pardoned Logan before his case was heard, and the present trial is not expected to result in a conviction. Judge Morton, of Lexington, is the special Judge appointed to try Harris.

The Fleming True Blue Democrat says: "Hechinger, the Maysville clothing man, was in Flemingsburg as usual on court day, and did all the business he and his assistants could attend to. Nearly every merchant in the county who attended court called upon him, and most all of them gave him orders. Mr. Hechinger is one of the best business men in this section of the country, and catches on with the merchants every time. He always has what they want in the best goods and best styles, and knows exactly how to get up clothing to suit his customers. He does a very large business in this county, and is always on hand in Flemingsburg on court day."

At the meeting of the Kentucky Synod of the Presbyterian Church, (South), at Franklin, the report on Sunday schools, by Rev. J. H. McCullagh, shows that a larger number of scholars are reported and greater interest is manifested in the cause. The report recommends more attention be paid to the study of the Shorter Catechism, and diplomas be given for memorizing it, as introduced years ago by Dr. Stuart Robinson in the Second Church, Louisville. It also referred to the need of more diligent efforts, seeing that there are some 300,000 children who do not attend Sabbath school. The report also recommends that a Superintendent of Sunday schools be appointed in each Presbytery, and that the first Sunday of June in each year be observed as children's day, and collections be raised for home and foreign missions.

THE TIMES' GOOSE BONE.

It Tells of a Warm, Wet and an Unhealthy Winter—Plenty of Rain and Snow.

The Louisville Times has great faith in the "goose bone" as a weather prophet. With the coming of every October, the Times hunts up a bone, and gives its predictions for the following winter. The bone this year was taken from a goose hatched last April, and killed on the 19th of this month. That our readers may have the benefit of its predictions, we quote the following:

"The bone is very distinctly marked, indicating a warm, wet and unhealthy winter. Such will be the general character of weather in this latitude for the three winter months; of course there will be some colder weather, but very few or any days will occur in which running water will freeze, and there will be a great deal of rain and snow. It will be such a winter as he old proverb says makes a green grave-yard. The marks near the head of the bone all point out, thus indicating that November will be unusually cold and stormy, and some very ugly and stormy weather may be looked for during the latter part of the month.

December will come in with sudden changes, and during the first seven days there will occur several blizzards, probably some of these first days of the first week will be as cold as any of the season. On the 14th the weather will be more fair, with fresh, nipping air, and whenever the wind changes to the south rain will quickly follow. Following this up to the 22nd, the weather will be warm for the season, but as the days commence to lengthen there will be a gradual fall of the thermometer, with a promise of colder and clearer weather for the holidays. This will be followed by rain or snow, and one or the other will accompany the old year as it goes out.

Falling weather will continue almost through the month of January. There will be frequent storms, with more or less rain or snow. Probably the coldest weather will occur about the middle of the month, followed by warmer weather and a heavy fall of rain or snow. From about the 21st on to the end of the month fair and colder weather will prevail.

February will come in clear and cold, followed by changeable weather with more or less rain or snow, which will prevail until past the middle of the month, then will follow a spring-like weather, and the trees will begin to bud, but the spots near the end of the keel indicate a sudden change and stormy weather at the close of the month, bringing March in like a lion.

Although the winter will be a very changeable one and the cold-wave flag will be a frequent sight, yet there will not be any very severe weather. The continued falling weather during January and the heavy snows that are promised will be apt to bring the river out of its banks, and it is more than likely that a dangerous flood will follow in February. Along about the first week in December the weather will be severe for the season, but the coldest days will come to us about the middle of January, while February will be more like spring. Umbrellas, gum coats and overcoats will be used more than heavy wrappers. November will probably be the ugliest weather of the whole season.

The trial of John M. Neaves for the murder of his father in Bracken County will come up Wednesday at Brooksville. He will enter a plea of insanity.

HIRAM P. CHENOWETH left Saturday for Washington City to enter upon his duties as Private Secretary to Colonel James Q. Chenoweth. Previous to his departure the Young Men's Literary Society presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane.

In the case of the Maysville & Big Sandy Railroad Company against Sam Brown for right of way through some property near the Newport water works, a jury in the Campbell Circuit Court fixed the damages at $13,533.33. This is $1,000 more than the commissioners allowed a few weeks ago.

CHARLES BROWN, alias Keerans, who was arrested here several days ago by Deputy Marshal Dawson, on a charge of robbing a party named Clark, at Hillsboro, Ky., had his trial last Saturday at Flemingsburg and was released. A special says: "There was a flaw in the legal identification of the money, and the accused was freed on the technicality."

ELDER J. S. SWEENEY, of Paris, recently visited Washington County, this State, and while there shook hands with more than five hundred members of the Sweeney family, descendants of his three great uncles and two great aunts who moved to that county in 1801. Of the two hundred and eight members of the Christian Church at Mackville, all but eighteen are Sweeneys or members of the family.

A Big Judgment.

Last Friday the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company confessed judgment in the clerk's office of the Circuit Court at Charleston, W. Va., in favor of C. P. Huntington for $1,772,976 with interest and costs. At a special term of the court held Saturday, C. P. Huntington filed his bill in chancery against the company and others, setting up the lien of his judgment and alleging default of full payment and of interest on bonds, and claiming that the C. and O. Railway Company is insolvent and praying for the appointment of a receiver. William C. Wickham was appointed receiver. Wickham is now second Vice-President and acting manager of the Newport News and Mississippi Valley Company.

Wickham gave bond in open court for $200,000. Similar proceedings were had on the 27th, in the Circuit Court of Henry County, at Richmond, Va., and Wickham was appointed receiver and gave bond in a similar sum.

At Owingsville last Friday, Deputy Sheriff William Faris, of Bath, was playing some of his pranks in John Richard's grocery. His fun might have ended all right had he remained in the store, but he started out on the run, and at the door stumbled and fell across the pavement, his head striking on the curbstone. He was knocked lifeless for the time, and examination showed that a collar bone was broken and one side of his head badly bruised.
